Human Trafficking a Global and National Perspective

Keynote Address – Ambassador Susan Coppedge

Ambassador (ret.) Susan Coppedge is the Executive Director of the Georgia Legal Services Program (GLSP) which provides access to justice and opportunities out of poverty for Georgians throughout the state, particularly those with low incomes, the elderly, and those in rural areas. GLSP has 10 statewide offices where individuals can obtain free legal services in the areas of family law, housing, access to public benefits, eviction prevention, farmworker rights, and access to education, among others.

Previously, Susan was nominated by President Obama and confirmed by the U.S. Senate as the Ambassador-at-Large for the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons at the United States Department of State, serving from 2015 to 2017. She also served for 15 years as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Northern District of Georgia focusing on investigating and prosecuting human trafficking cases including indicting over 50 human traffickers and assisting over 93 victims. Her advocacy on behalf of survivors of trafficking is ongoing.

Ambassador Coppedge began her legal career clerking for then Chief Judge William C. O’Kelley in the Northern District of Georgia, then entered the Department of Justice Environment and Natural Resources Division through the Honors Program. A native of Dalton, Georgia, Ambassador Coppedge obtained her undergraduate degree from Duke University, magna cum laude, and her law degree with distinction from Stanford University.

Based on true stories, SOLD is the story of Lakshmi who journeys from a pastoral, rural village in Nepal to a gritty brothel/prison called Happiness House in Kolkata, India. Through one extraordinary girl’s story, SOLD illustrates the brutality of child trafficking, which affects millions of children around the globe every year. Globally the average age of a trafficked girl is thirteen, the same age as the girl in the film. SOLD is a call to action, and a testament to the power and resilience of the human spirit.
