The responsible conduct of research requires investigators to operate according to the shared ethical values of the research community of honesty, accuracy, efficiency, and objectivity. This presentation will provide an overview of Research Misconduct (RM) - the fabrication, falsification, or plagiarism in proposing, performing, or reviewing research, or in reporting research results – with a focus on Financial Conflicts of Interest as a motivating factor in RM and the importance of financial interest disclosure and conflict of interest management as tools to protect both the researcher and the university from allegations of RM or research bias.
